The recent failure of Mr. intended gradually to re-cast, after the system GRONEVELDT to obtain Chinese emigrants | dent considers it doubtful whether the applicato go to Acheen to labour on Government | tion of the Chinese will be complied with. works there, is a case in point. The Batavian Government made tempting offers, and into by the emigrant. He was simply offered goods. A large quantity of cigare, tea, and a free passage to Acheen, and would be at other articles were found on board the Singapore liberty, on his arrival there, to hire himself to private individuals. But there was the work, which was guaranteed to last for two or three years, and there was the pay, which was undoubtedly high. At first the scheme attracted favourable attention, but presently some alarmists raised their voices, the Colouis! Government looked coldly on it, and at length it had to be abandoned.

It would seem that several causes were at work to lead to this failure. The Agents for the Acheen emigration offered advances to the coplies. These advances were made, not us inducements to the coolies to emigrate, but to enable them to get off properly equipped, pay any little debts they might have, or to leave a few dollars with needy or dependent relatives. But the very fact that advances | residents there which possesses all the qualities were given roused suspicion among the better class of Chinese which no explanation could, seemingly, dissipate, and it speedily got abroad that it was a contract scheme of emigration. The emigrants were warned | for imparting a dense black or dark brown to not to go, told that they did not know what might befall them on their arrival at Acheen, and it was significantly pointed out | material for which we have in our midst, but to them that no provision had been made for not yet developed. their return. And, as we announced vesterday | sent by the Chinese Government, but by the it will be difficult for Mr. GEONEVELDT to obtain emigrants from the coast ports. The of the Arsenal at Nanking to visit the suspicions set affect in this colony have spread further. The Canton Authorities are determined to check the movement, and the received a letter from Shangbai telling we that Acting Viceroy has sent peremptory orders the Chinese newspaper Sing-po, in its issue of to the various officials to issue proclamations and to take precautionary measures against the title of Imperial Commissioner, nor have the emigration. The Namhoi magistrate I given any one to understand that I was sent has, in consequence, issued a proclamation offering a reward for the apprehension of those engaged in the business. the port that it should become the depot for Chinese emigration, but a more certain guarantee for its legitimate character could be ensured in a British than in a Chinese port. It would be most desirable that all countries desiring to attract Chinese emigrants to their shores should give the most absolute and undoubted guarantee that the emigrants should be left free agents and receive good treatment. It must be shown Banksverein and the German Union Bank too, that the means of securing a return passage would be in their power if they present purposes, having regard to the supwished it. No doubt the whole question is pression of the Eastern branches, and do not surrounded with difficulties, and these are not all on one side. It is well known that many coolies volunteer as emigrants to obtain an advance; and, this granted, all their Royal Albert, 107, sorewship, with all possible anxiety is to find an opportunity of escaping despatch, in order that they may be used in the from their engagement. The only way to guard against this and concomitant evils, is opinion prevails that the attempt will prove to engage poor but respectable families to costly failure. The idea of raising the Vanguard emigrate on liberal and equitable terms This would perhaps be a more expensive Admiralty, but was abandoned, experiments at POUND for Preserving Timber from the scheme at first, but it would prove most profitable in the end. Plenty of emigrants of this character could be secured, and prosperous colonies might in this manner easily be founded. Their interests could be looked

The Lords of the Admiralty, now on an official visit to Plymouth, have minutely inspected the Iron Duke, and had explained to them what took place on board the Vanguard after she was struck. Although the Iron Duke seemed at first to be uninjured, a close examination has shown that although the prow passed very easily through the five-eighth plating just below the armour, yet that the sudden bringing up caused by the upper slope of the ram with the iron plating has slightly started a plate directly behind the prow. The Iron Duke is in dry dook and around her prow a large platform has been erected. From the edge of the dock no injury is visible, but when on the platform a furrow right across the upper part of the prowean be seen, and on the port side there is an indentation sufficient to start the point below the atreaks of armour plating. The statement that a court-martial has been ordered on Captain Hickley, of the Iron Duke, is premature. The minutes of evidence given during the inquiry into the loss of the Vanguard have only just reached the Admiralty, and no decision will be arrived at respecting the Iron Duke until they have been taken into careful consideration by the Board. Is it on Britain that the task would devolve of restoring order in a China reduced to chaos ? The administration of India is a jest compared to such an undertaking. Would not Russia, already so advantageously camped upon the Amour, claim a share in the mighty spoil? How many barbarous States. and ferocious dynasties might not rise upon the ruins of the dismembered Empire? China could be conveniently cut up into a score of powerful States, and how should we like to have to hold in check half-a-dozen turbulent despotisms ranged along our Indian frontier, each disposing of its tens of thousands of semimilitary maranders, as impossible to exterminato as they would be easy to defeat? If we have new to complain of the annoyance of having to bring pressure to bear upon Peking, how should we relish a couple of annual expeditions brough the Himalayas against some one or other of the dozen lesser Pekings that would arise to plague us? On the other hand, the utility of a settled and powerful China, even in the merepoint of view of British interests alone, is not going to let our countrymen be murdered. But it would be well worth the while of the ablest statesmanship to devise a means by which the jealousy of the Chinese Government towards toreigners in general might at least be laid aside where British subjects are concerned. Could we not convince the politicians at Peking that Great Britain, so far from plotting against the integrity of Ohina, has the strongest interest in maintaining a Power capable at once of ruling in telerable peace four hundred millions of men, and of opposing an insuperable barrier in certain eventualities to Russian ambition in the East? The problem ought not to be too difficult to be solved. Surely we ought to be able to conmulate proofs that—whatever destiny has ed us to do in Hindostan—destiny, or at least prodence, imperatively connects us to safeguard the peace and independence of China. There is no side on which we might not expect trouble were anything serious to happen to the principle of central government among the Uhinese people. THE ROUTE BETWEEN COCHIN CHINA AND YUNNAN.

In a recent issue we noticed the conclusion Treaty between France and Annam, by which the King of that country agreed to throw open three ports in Tonquip, and to place his kingdom under French protection. The probable comoletion of a Treaty of this kind has been long foreshadowed, and the matter is of especial interest and importance at the present time. when the opening up of a trade route with Western China is occupying so much public attention. In the comments which have been made upon the subject, the fact that Russia and Great Britain are approaching their frontiers to those of China, and "claiming the duties of good neighbourhood" has been much lwelt upon, but it has of late been overlooked

It is somewhat curious that this fact should seem to be passed over at the present time. seeing that on other occasions. there would appear to be less reason to notice it, a great deal has been said upon the subject. It has long ago been ascertained that the river the capital of Yunnan, and thus the French can actually establish a trade route by water through a territory over which they claim a protectorate, and to the same districts in China to which are seeking access from India by way of Burmah. So far have matters progressed in regard to opening up the new route by the San-Kai River that we understand that a company have undertaken to keep up regular communication between Saigon. Tonquin, and Hongkong, and so to carry on trade with the rich provinces of Yunnan and Szechnen. How far this fact may have inluenced our Government in endeavouring to establish a route vid Burmah it is, of course, impossible to say; but it is by no means improbable that a knowledge of the preponderating influence which it would give to France to have the sole command of so important an entry into China has had something to do with the interest which has of late been manifested in the subject. The Protectorate which France desires to establish in Tonquin would, there can be little doubt, be only the first step towards conquest of that country and Annam, if, indeed, it would not practically amount to that be more equable or regular than the conditions in itself. CATHOLIC UNIVERSITY FOR PARIS A pastoral has been issued by twenty-four archbishons and bishops appealing for subscriptions towards a Catholic university at Paris. THE PROPOSED ANNEXATION OF NEW GUINEA.

The Government of New South Wales has prepared a Cabinet minute for his Excellency the Governor for transmission to the Secretary of State for the Colonies on the subject of the proposed annexation of Guinea. It contains the following passages :- My colleagues and myself venture respectfully to offer the opinion that on many grounds it would be desirable in the highest interests of civilization that Great Britain should, with us little delay as possible, take possession not only of the magnificent island of New Guinea, but of the islands of Britain, New Ireland, and the chain of islands to the north-east and east of: New Guines, from Beaugaffiville Island to San Christoval, the south- Goods stored therein, at Current Local Rates, eastern-most of the Solomon group. THE LATE PRESIDENT OF ECUADOR The Panama Star and Herald writes as follows of the lately murdered President of the Republic of Ecuador:—Garcia Moreno was not an ordinary man; on the contrary, for these times he was a most extraordinary one, and it CHINA, JAPAN, the PHILIPPINES, and may be worth our while to try to understand the STRAITS. him as he understood himself, his aims and his intentions, since he was certainly a representa- [be ten per cent. To understand bim, it is needful that we ourselves become Roman that all his actions are the consistent and pared to GRANT INSURANCES at Corrent Rates. natural results of his theory. We must start out with the assertions that Romanism is the only true religion; that the Pope is divine and infallible; that under no pretence whatever can a word be breathed in contradiction to his de crees; that the images and trifles that he orders to be worshipped must be worshipped; that the men he appoints as priests and rulers are sacred and to some extent partake of his own infallibility; that they can do no wrong; and that, if in their zeal, they have to commit violence or murder, the end justifies the means; that absolution waits them here, and praise and glory bereafter. Having assumed to believe all this, Garcia Moreno must become, in our eyes, a great man and a hero. He believed (or professed to be "lieve) it all, and felt in himself and his position the strength needful to carry out his theory, and he set about it in downright earnestness Of his little nation he proposed to make a Romish Paradise, a kind of model to the whole world of what the world be if the Pope and his LIVERPOOL AND LONDON AND GLOBE religion were to become Universal. Not having any but Catholics to deal with, and having untimited power over them he thought by the aid of his Bishops and Jesuits he could not fail. He strove by force to make people virtuous, by terror to make them subservient, and set bimself to remodel man according to the Vatioan Decrees. He pitted Catholicism and the Pope against God and nature, believing them to be in unison, and only failed because they were not. That this was his aim, and that he honestly strove for it, all his actions prove; and but that it is in direct opposition to, and dwarf all that is greatest and best in the heart and brain of man, we should be constrained to admire him. As it is we must admire the persistency, determination, and fortitude which he has manifested in his work: we must admire the extraordinary | power which has kept a nation under, and fifteen years.
